CLASSROOM NEWS

Firefly Room – We need warmth, sun, and outside time. Thank you to our families for bringing in extra clothes and items for our activities.

Green Room – We are working on Manners & respect. We are also learning about our 5 senses.

Purple Room – We had fun seeing the Van de Graaf generator at the Sciencenter.

Rainbow Room – We are working on our colors this month (one color a week). We will be doing a lot of fun art projects.

Dragonfly Room – This past month we have been working with many different sensory mediums. We have brought snow inside and made different sensory filled bags to hang throughout the room. We also went to the Sciencenter to play with their ducks and water. We also made 2 edible playdoughs – peanut butter and oatmeal playdough!

Butterfly Room – We are working on our colors. We are reading stories, doing art projects, and different sensory activities dealing with different colors.

Blue Room – We are focusing on tummy time and reaching for objects. The crawlers are pulling up onto furniture and learning how to do this safely.

Yellow Room (School Age Program) – We had lots of messy fun making piñatas. We are looking forward to tie-dye projects and planting in the Spring.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

-Attendance – Please call the center before 9:00 am if your child will be later than 9:00 am or will be absent.

-Training Days – March 12-13, 2015 we will be closed due to training days.

-Closing Time – The center closes at 5:30 pm. If you are picking up your child past 5:30 pm, there is a late fee of $1.00 per minute after 5:30 pm. It is important that you leave the building promptly by 5:30, as we need the building vacant for the cleaning crew. Please come to the center at least 10 minutes before if you would like to talk with the classroom teachers.

- Change Your Clocks – Daylight Savings Time - This Sunday, March 8th move your clocks one hour forward.

-Spring – It has been a very long winter, but Spring is almost here – March 20th.

Upcoming Events – March

12-13	Closed for Training Days
16	Board Meeting at DICC – 5:30-7:30

Dinnertime: Managing Fussy Eaters

How many times have you read that dinnertime is supposed to be a wonderful occasion for togetherness and family bonding? Everyone chills out, enjoys one another's company, and shares humorous and engaging stories.

If suppertime at your house does not fit this picture, don't feel bad. You have lots and lots of company! The idea of suppertime may be a nice one, but the reality is often much different. Parents are tired from working all day and the kids are tired from school. Add a little sibling rivalry, a finicky eater (or two), and kids who don't want to sit still, and you've got a recipe for a disagreeable state of affairs.

Let's Get 4 Things Straight!

A good plan for eating together starts with a good grasp of what eating and mealtimes are all about:

1. Don't take it personally! You are not the food you prepare, so if your children don't care for what you cook up on a particular night, that should NOT be seen as a personal rejection of you.
2. Kids have a natural ability to select and eat good things. However, this includes a strong tendency in preschoolers to be finicky. As many as 50% or more of this group are described by their parents as fussy eaters. Children will gravitate to sweet and salt, but not bitter and sour. Those tastes have to be more acquired over time.
3. Because of their fussiness about food, toddlers and preschoolers need to be gradually introduced to—but not forced to eat—new foods. Some experts say that for foods like vegetables it may take as many as 15-20 exposures before a child will actually eat something like a new vegetable.
4. Little kids are not particularly good at sitting at the table, but they will do this more easily when they are hungry. When they are full, however, the Three-Minutes-Per-Year Rule kicks in. Not hungry two-year-olds, for example, can sit still for 6 minutes; not-hungry three-year-olds for 9 minutes. Expecting more will get you in trouble!

Ensure Good Appetites!

Make sure the kids are hungry when suppertime rolls around. You know your kids best, but usually it's a good idea to discontinue any kind of snacking about an hour and one half to two hours before a meal. Your children may not like this rule initially, but stick to it and pretty soon it will be simply routine.
